

I oppose FCC deregulation of the media. It does nothing to make democracy stronger. It makes it less likely that people will get unbiased, important news from diverse and independant reporters. It makes it more likely that big business will meddle where it doesn't belong. Deregulation would be a win for greedy power hungry corporations who already have way too much pull and are undermining what is truly great about America.

We, the people, own the airways and should have say so in how their sold and used to the corporate, politically biased media.
